

VITAMIN ANGELS

Become a Field Partner

Vitamin Angels helps at-risk populations in need – specifically pregnant women, new mothers, and children under five – gain access to lifesaving and life changing vitamins and minerals. Our goal is to reach underserved women and children and help fill the gaps for those without regular access to healthcare or nutrition services.

Vitamin Angels currently works in more than 50 countries with a network of over 800 Field Partners to deliver vitamin A and albendazole to more than 40 million children under five and multivitamins to hundreds of thousands of pregnant and breastfeeding women. We are eager to expand our growing network.

Vitamin Angels provides annual micronutrient and albendazole grants to qualified non-governmental or community-based organizations – our Field Partners – who want to incorporate micronutrients into their existing community healthcare or nutrition services. We provide:

- Vitamin A to save lives and reduce illness,
- Albendazole to reduce the burden of worms and improve micronutrient status, and
- Multivitamins for pregnant & breastfeeding women to support fetal growth and thereby reduce neonatal and infant mortality.

Who qualifies to become a Field Partner?

Organizations must meet the following criteria:

- Must be registered as a locally recognized entity (i.e. non-governmental organization, clinic, faith-based organization, etc).
- Can target “hard-to-reach” beneficiaries (pregnant women, new mothers, and children 6-59 months) who do not have regular access to vitamin products from national health services.
- Have existing programs that serve children under five and/or pregnant and breastfeeding women, or are able to integrate vitamins into existing programs without financial assistance from Vitamin Angels.
- Maintains a local presence in the communities being served and are able to reach the same beneficiaries every 6 months for several years.
- Serve at least 1,000 children 6-59 months and/or 100 pregnant and breastfeeding women.

How do I become a Field Partner?

Vitamin Angels is actively seeking new field partners. Join us in our effort to reduce undernutrition and provide micronutrients to the hardest-to-reach populations.

1

Plan and Apply for a Grant

After reviewing our eligibility criteria, complete our micronutrient grant application.

Determine the need in the communities you serve. Consider coordinating with your local health center to avoid duplication.

Only include requests for children under five and/or pregnant & breastfeeding women.

2

Distribute the Vitamins

After your grant is approved, Vitamin Angels will send your shipment to your primary address.

Integrate vitamin distribution into your programs in a way that works for you and your community.

Use the educational and training materials provided to help you distribute the products according to best practices.

3

Report & Renew

Six months after you receive the grant, we will check-in to assess your inventory and discuss any issues with the distribution.

After completing the distribution, submit the Annual Reporting form, which tracks how many women and children were served and where the distributions occurred.

Once the Annual Report has been submitted, grants can be renewed annually by submitting a simple grant extension application!

Frequently Asked Questions About Becoming a Vitamin Angels Field Partner

Does Vitamin Angels provide cash funding?

No, Vitamin Angels only provides in-kind grants (product donations). We seek to work with organizations that have existing programs to which the vitamins can be added with limited cost to your organization.

Does Vitamin Angels help with shipping the vitamins to my organization?

Yes! Vitamin Angels covers the cost to ship to your primary address in the USA, and if you do not have a US presence, we will cover shipping costs to the port of entry in the country where you work. Please note that your organization is responsible for clearing the product through customs as well as transportation costs to the communities you serve.

Does Vitamin Angels provide any training opportunities?

Yes! Vitamin Angels provides a variety of support to help you deliver our products according to international best practices. We offer educational materials such as instruction sheets and posters, as well as a two-day, in-person training on service delivery for vitamin A and deworming.
